Allow 2 Weeks for Processing Jahn Color Samples

You Will Receive:

- One matching dry powder sample
The dry powder should be mixed and applied on site (from the same location that sample was removed) as a color mock-up.
Directions for mixing, application, and curing are included or can be found on www.cathedralstone.com.
(The site-applied sample should match our finished laboratory sample)

If necessary we will notify you if we determine that a Standard or Custom Jahn color matches your masonry sample.

Please note the following exceptions:

Terra Cotta – We will supply your choice of Standard color or custom match the surface color. In either case, the Jahn repair should be painted with CSP's terra cotta glazing system to prevent later intrusion.

Granite – It is not possible for us to match the multicolored appearance of granite. We will supply you with a suitable matching background color – the appropriate aggregate (granite dust, etc.) must be added on site to the surface of the damp Jahn mortar. It may be necessary to lightly wash the finished repair with a mild acetic acid (white vinegar) to expose the aggregate within one or two days.

Marble – The Jahn M120 Marble Repair Mortar will be supplied in a uniform color. If attempting to simulate veining, on site techniques must be developed, possibly using paint, stains or a darker Jahn mix applied in veins carved into the Jahn repair.
